Nature, in its ministry to man, is not only the material, but is also the process and the result. All parts incessantly work into each other's hands for the profit of man. The wind sows the seed; the sun evaporates the sea; the wind blows the vapor to the field; the ice, on the other side of the planet, condenses rain on this; the rain feeds the plant; the plant feeds the animal; and thus the endless circulations of the divine charity nourish man.

What a man thinks of himself, that it is which determines, or rather indicates, his fate.

To be a philosopher is not merely to have subtle thoughts, nor even to found a school, but so to love wisdom as to live according to its dictates, a life of simplicity, independence, magnanimity, and trust. It is to solve some of the problems of life, not only theoretically, but practically . . . books are the treasured wealth of the world and the fit inheritance of generations and nations. Books, the oldest and the best, stand naturally and rightfully on the shelves of every cottage.

Ed White's contemporary issues class — an animated discussion on abortion on demand.

There are many fine things which we cannot say if we have to shout.

Since Dr. Welby can't make it, would you settle for a body repairman?

Life is a never ending dance.

Today's shorthand class will be held at the Farris Wheel and afterwards we'll adjourn to the hot dog stand.

Madge Wray, this is your life!!!

I'm glad you asked that question!!

Who is that behind those Foster Grants?

Your Avon lady always knows what best suits you. Right, Jimmy?

The dried snails were delicious — Bring on the chocolate-covered ants.

To be in company, even with the best, is soon wearisome and dissipating. I love to be alone, I never found the companion that was so companionable as solitude.

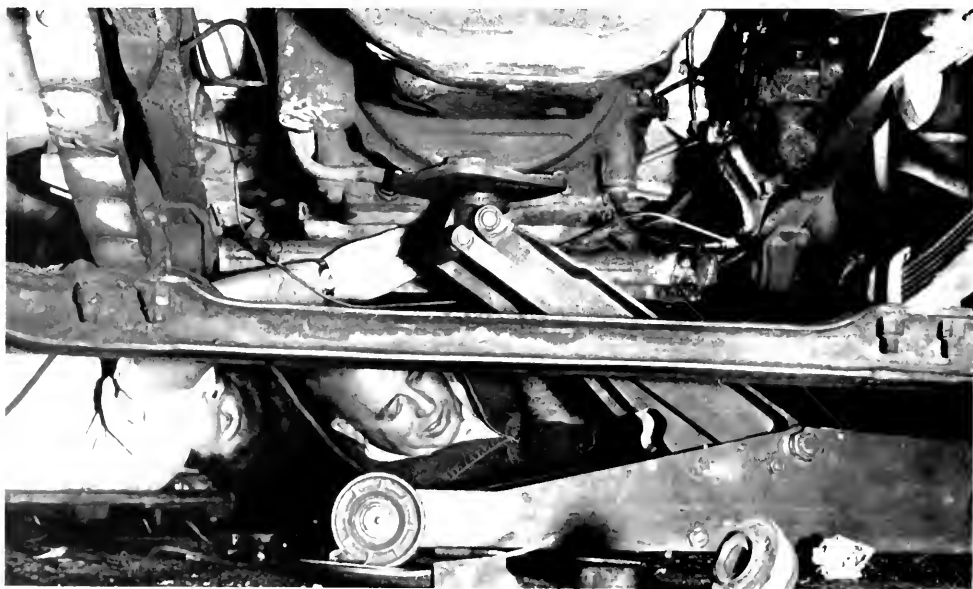

Cleveland Tech's Used Car Lot

Dale Hamrick crowns our Christmas Queen, Lula Petty.

The scholar is that man who must take up into himself all the ability of the time, all the contributions of the past, all the hopes of the future. He must be a university of knowledge.

Look ma — no hands!!

CCTI on parade!!!

A time for work . . .

and a time for play

Excuse me sir, did you say Snively Clapsaddle?

Ma says there'll be $5,000 in gold on the stagecoach!!!

But Mike, mother never told me about ultra-brite!!!

Pardon me, but your slip is showing.

I can't believe it's graduation already!!!

No method nor discipline can supersede the necessity of being forever on the alert. What is a course of history or philosophy, or poetry, no matter how well selected, or the best society, or the most admirable routine of life, compared with the discipline of looking always at what is to be seen? Will you be a reader, a student merely, or a seer? Read your fate, see what is before you, and walk on into futurity.

We will walk on our own feet; we will work with our own hands; we will speak our own minds. The study of letters shall be no longer a name for pity, for doubt, and for sensual indulgence. The dread of man and the love of man shall be a wall of defense and a wreath of joy around all. A nation of man will for the first time exist, because each believes himself inspired by the Divine Soul which also inspires all men.

Lula Petty. Christmas Queen.

Doris Lowery

*I loafe and invite my soul,
I lean and loafe at my ease observing a spear
of summer grass.*

Karen Whitener

A morning-glory at my window satisfies me more than the metaphysics of books.

Juanita Boyd

Dottie Greene

*I inhale great draughts of space,
The east and the west are mine, and the north and the south are mine.*

*O to bathe in the swimming-bath, or in a good place alone shore,
To splash the water! to walk ankle-deep, or race
along the shore.*

Teresa Hartsoe

Rita Hawk

*Shine! Shine! Shine!
Pour down your warmth, great sun!
While we bask, we two together.*

Margie Ballard

*I heard what was said of the universe,
Heard it and heard it of several thousand years;
It is middling well as far as it goes — but is that all?*

LouVerne Crosby

*Now I see the secret of the making of the best persons,
It is to grow in the open air and to eat and sleep with the earth.*

Betty Owens

*Was somebody asking to see the soul?
See, your own shape and countenance, persons,
substances, beasts, the trees, the running rivers,
the rocks and sands.*

*A child said, "What is the grass?" fetching it
to me with full hands,
How could I answer the child? I do not know what it is any more than he.*

Becky Barrett

Earth! You seem to look for something at my hands, Say, old top-knot, what do you want?

Miriam Smith

Lula Petty

What is a man anyhow? What am I? What are you?

Our young executive takes time from a very busy schedule to keep up with the daily news.

James B. Petty
President of CCTI

Whoso would be a man, must be a non-conformist. . . . nothing is at last sacred but the integrity of your own mind. Absolve you to yourself, and you shall have the suffrage of the world.

An invigorating walk in the crisp morning air keeps our president alert for his many activities.

The new classroom building has been a major concern for our president this past year. We know how happy he'll be in '75 when the building is completed.

There is a time in every man's education when he arrives at the conviction that envy is ignorance; that imitation is suicide; that he must take himself for better or worse as his portion; that though the wide universe is full of good, no kernel of nourishing corn can come to him but through his toil bestowed on that plot of ground which is given to him to till.

The life of man is a self-evolving circle, which, from a ring imperceptibly small, rushes on all sides outwards to new and larger circles, and that without end. The extent to which this generation of circles, wheel without wheel, will go, depends on the force or truth of the individual soul. For it is the inert effort of each thought, having formed itself into a circular wave of circumstances for instance an empire, rules of an art, a local usage, a religious rite — to heap itself on that ridge and to solidify and hem in the life.

Let man then learn the revelation of all nature and all thought to his heart; this, namely; that the highest dwells with him; that the sources of nature are in his own mind, if the sentiment of duty is there . . . nothing can bring you peace but yourself. Nothing can bring you peace but the triumph of principles.

Darrell Ledbetter, our student intern, is getting the straight facts from Haley Dedmon, director of the Learning Resource Center.

The Learning Resource Center, which serves as the academic center of CCTI, adheres to a philosophy of service to students, faculty, administration, and community. The LRC supports and enriches classroom instruction through a collection of selected materials such as books, pamphlets, periodicals, records, films, slides, filmstrips, and transparencies. The LRC personnel are always willing to help those who desire help.

"Now, after you watch Mickey Mouse . . ." Becky Cook, our very competent Learning Center Co-ordinator, helps a student.

"The show must go on," says Sheila. Our dedicated student assistant came to work despite being rather shaken from an auto accident.

A librarian's work is never done!! At least, Alice Tigner says so. Alice, keeper of our treasured books, will never know how much we really appreciate her.

Dot Roark, our media specialist, shows Becky Kiser how to operate a cassette copier. We could never make it without our media specialist! It is she who orders all those films, filmstrips, records, etc., that are such vital teaching aids.

To believe your own thought, to believe that what is true for you in your private heart is true for all men, — that is genius.

Throw a stone into the stream, and the circles that propagate themselves are the beautiful type of all influence. Man is conscious of a universal soul within or behind his individual life, where in, as in a firmament, the natures of Justice, Truth, Love, Freedom, arise and shine.

It is remarkable how easily and insensibly we fall into a particular route, and make a beaten track for ourselves . . . the surface of the earth is soft, and impressible by the feet of men; and so with the paths which the mind travels. How worn and dusty, then must be the highways of the world, how deep the ruts of tradition and conformity!

If one advances confidently in the direction of his dreams, and endeavors to live the life which he has imagined, he will meet with a success unexpected in common hours. He will put some things behind, will pass an invisible boundary; new, universal, and more liberal laws will begin to establish themselves around and within him; or the old laws be expanded, and interpreted in his favor in a more liberal sense, and he will live with the license of a higher order of beings. In proportion as he simplifies his law, the laws of the universe will appear less complex, and solitude will not be solitude, nor poverty poverty, nor weakness weakness . . . if you have built castles in the air, your work need not be lost; that is where they should be. Now put the foundations under them.

Do not be too timid and squeamish about your actions. All life is an experiment. The more experiments you make the better. What if they are a little coarse, and you may get your coat soiled or torn? Our age is retrospective. It builds the sepulchres of the fathers. It writes biographies, histories, and criticism. The foregoing generations beheld God and nature face to face; we, through their eyes. Why should not we have a poetry and philosophy of insight and not of tradition, and a religion by revelation to us, and not the history of theirs? Embosomed for a season in nature, whose floods of life stream around and through us, and invite us, by the powers they supply, to action proportioned to nature, why should we grope among the dry bones of the past, or put the living generation into masquerade out of its faded wardrobe? The sun shines to-day also. There is more wool and flax in the fields. There are new lands, new men, new thoughts. Let us demand our own works and laws and worship.

A good deal of character is our abused age. The rights of woman, the antislavery —, temperance —, peace —, health —, and money-movements; female speakers, mobs and martyrs, the paradoxes, the antagonism of old and new, the anomalous church, the daring mysticism and the plain prose, the uneasy relation of domestics, the struggling toward better household arrangements, — all indicate life at the heart, not yet justly organized at the surface.

Solitude is naught and society is naught. Alternate them and the good of each is seen. You can soon learn all that society can teach you for a while. After some interval when these delights have been sucked dry, accept again the opportunities of society. The same scenes revisited shall wear a new face, shall yield a higher culture. Undulation, alternation is the condition of progress, of life.

Democracy, Freedom, has its root in the scared truth that every man hath in him the divine Reason, or that, though few men since the creation of the world live according to the dictates of Reason, yet all men are created capable of so doing. That is the equality and the only equality of all men. To this truth we look when we say, Reverence thyself; Be true to thyself. Because every man has within him somewhat really divine, therefore is slavery the unpardonable outrage it is.

Doris, our own women's libber, becomes our first auto mechanic.

To anticipate, not the sunrise and the dawn merely, but, if possible, Nature herself . . . Nature and human life are as various as our several constitutions . . . Could a greater miracle take place than for us to look through each other's eyes for an instant? We should live in all the ages of the world in an hour; ay, in all the worlds of the ages. History, Poetry, Mythology! — I know of no reading of another's experience so startling and informing as this would be.

THE BRIDGE BUILDER

*An old man, going a lone highway
Came at the evening, cold and gray,
To a chasm, vast and deep and wide,
Through which was flowing a sullen tide.
The old man crossed in the twilight dim;
The sullen stream had no fears for him;
But he turned when safe on the other side
And built a bridge to span the tide.*

*"Old man," said a fellow pilgrim near,
"You are wasting strength with building here;
Your journey will end with the ending day;
You never again must pass this way;
You have crossed the chasm, deep and wide
Why build you the bridge at the eventide?"*

*The builder lifted his old gray head:
"Good friend, in the path I have come," he said,
"There followeth after me today
A youth whose feet must pass this way.
This chasm that has been naught to me
To that fair-haired youth may a pitfall be.
He, too, must cross in the twilight dim;
Good friend, I am building a bridge for him."*

—Will Allen Dromgoole

The Bridge staff has worked to put together a yearbook that will portray a revealing picture of our school. But although we worked hard on it, we know it is not entirely accurate.

Since pictures play the most important part in an annual, we would like to thank our photographer, Mr. Elwin Stillwell, for all our pictures. We certainly appreciate his time and efforts.

We want to give credit for our quotations to three 19th Century poets of Nature and self-reliance: Emerson, Thoreau, and Whitman.

Of course, we don't want to forget to thank Student Services for allowing us to work on the annual in their closet.

Our final thank you is to the administrators, faculty, and students for their cooperation.
